Lemontree and SO4IT are joining forces to create an even stronger offering within testing, automation, software development, In Memory Computing and authentication solutions.

Lemontree and SO4IT got to know each other when they became part of Mirovia Group, in 2020 and 2021 respectively. They have since worked together in several projects and realized that they complement each other well. After some time, they started exploring the possibility to deepen their collaboration under a joint brand.

“The initiative was altogether theirs. A core mission for us as owners is to support our portfolio companies with their operations and their key initiatives. As this is something that Lemontree and SO4IT wanted, naturally we are positive and supportive of their decision”, says Ola Stafström, COO at Mirovia Group.

There are several advantages to this alliance. By combining Lemontree’s ability to generate sales through effective marketing and their vast experience in project implementation with the deep expertise in IMC technologies and the strong conceptual technologies that SO4IT provides, the two companies are able to scale their joint markets more than they would have done individually.

“This enables us to deliver entire software projects with everything from test and requirements, development, and infrastructure. The competence that SO4IT has within infrastructure and software development complements Lemontree’s expertise within automation of delivery, quality assurance and testing in an amazing way. Together we are significantly stronger!” says Rickard Ridderström, CEO at Lemontree.

SO4IT is the leading supplier of instant transaction solutions and has built unique solutions for how to handle large amounts of transactions on GigaSpaces, for whom they are the sole contractor in Nordics. SO4IT also creates authentication solutions and partners with other providers of online transaction solutions, such as PingCap.

“What is important for me is to continue to deliver the best solutions on the market. When we started the discussions with Lemontree we realized that we would benefit greatly from being more than just sister companies in the same group. I look forward to being able to offer our clients a wider range of specialized services” says Magnus Poromaa, Founder and CEO of SO4IT.
